MASTER OF EDUCATION DEGREE

PROGRAMME OBJECTIVES

The Master of Education (M.Ed.) Degree Programme prepares graduates to assume leadership roles in education and to develop their professional career while broadening and deepening their teaching expertise. The programme is designed to enhance teaching through an in-depth study of theory and practice in education.

Students will have the opportunity to develop critical competences in curricula theorising, planning, and managing administrative commitments from perspective that are informed by International and Caribbean experiences. Additionally, participants will learn how to respond in innovative ways to the various curricula and pedagogical challenges that present themselves in school.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

The M.Ed. is a thirty (30) credit programme and is awarded by the University of New Brunswick (UNB), Fredericton, Canada. The programme of study takes approximately three (3) years to complete through a combination of distance learning via the World Wide Web and also a face-to-face component offered at UWI-ROYTEC, Trinidad.
